

It's not a baby!!!

It's your Shoulder!!!

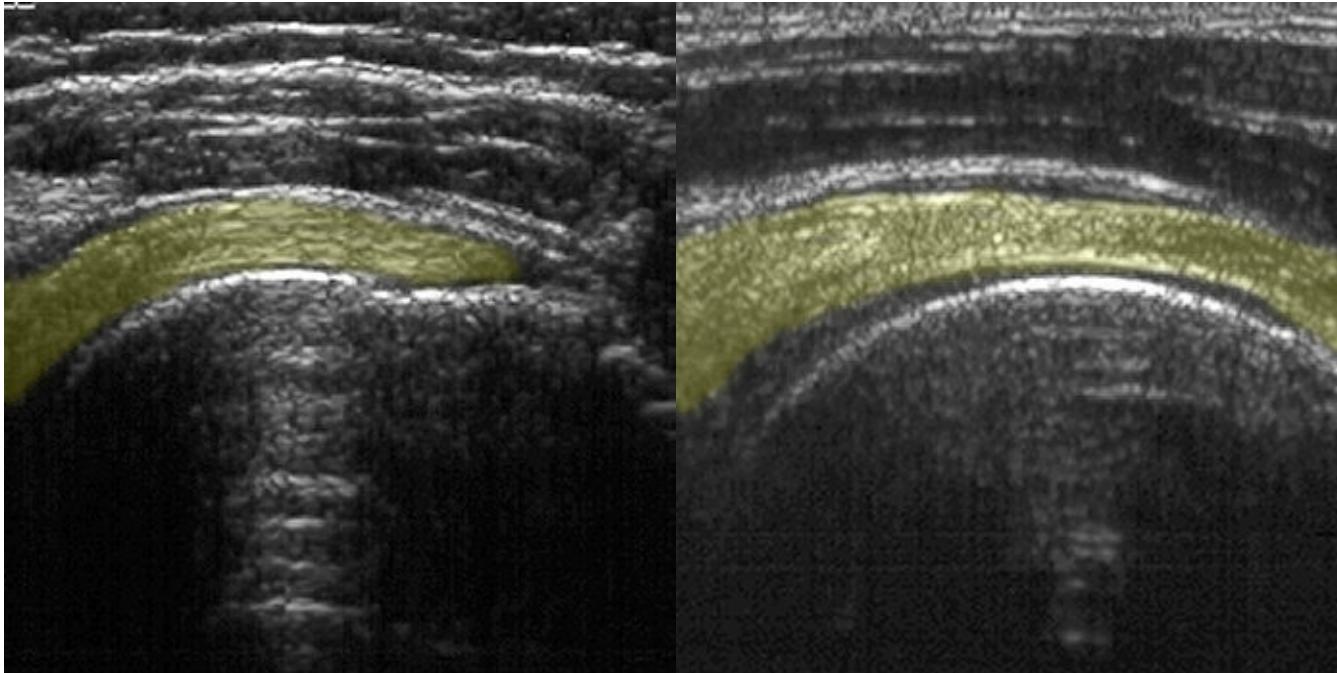

Left: Biceps Tendon - Longitudinal sonogram shows the normal appearance of the long head of the biceps tendon (yellow shade/arrow).

Right: Biceps Tendon - Transverse sonogram shows the long head of the biceps tendon (yellow shade/arrow) within the bicipital groove (blue line/arrow).

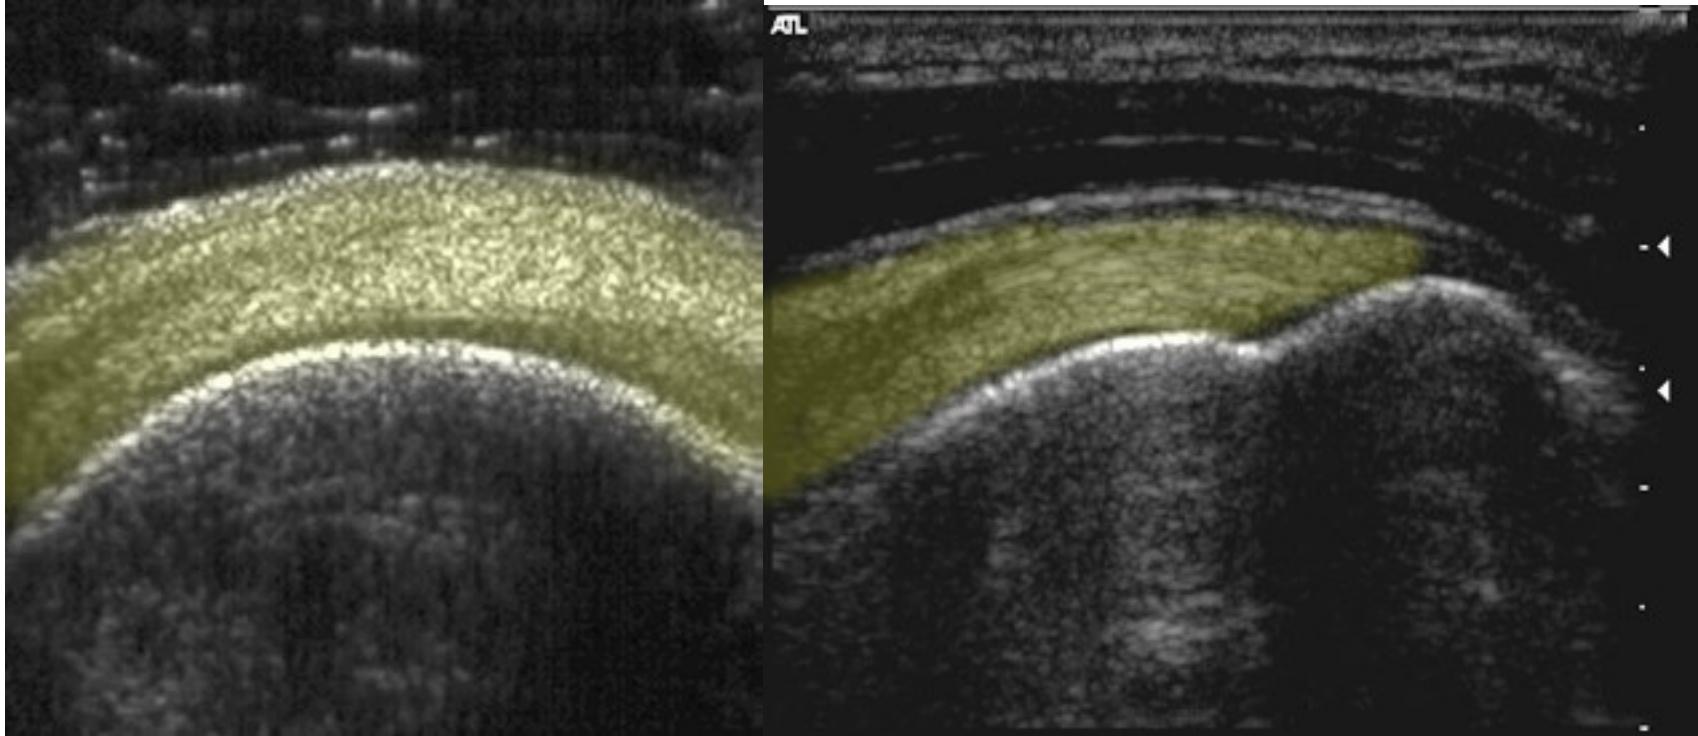

Left: Subscapularis - Longitudinal sonogram of the normal subscapularis tendon (yellow shade).

Right: Subscapularis - Transverse sonogram shows the normal multipennate appearance (red lines) of the multiple bundles of the subscapularis tendon (yellow shade).

Left: Infraspinatus - Longitudinal sonogram of the normal infraspinatus tendon (yellow shade).

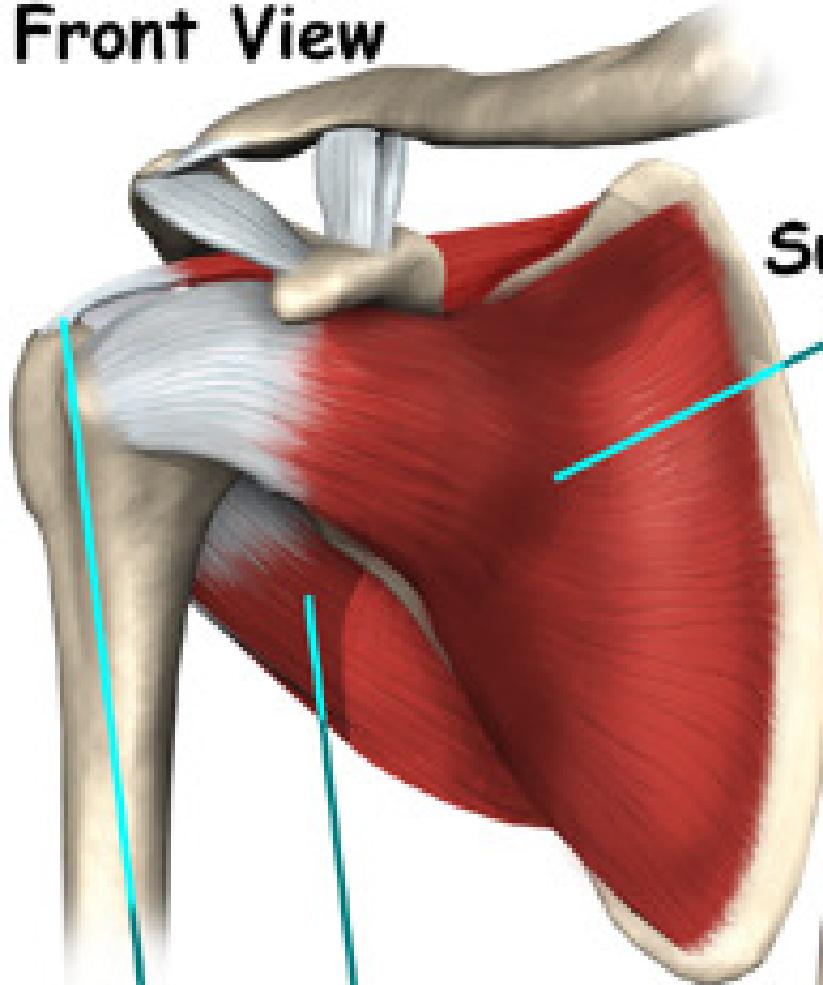

Right: Infraspinatus - Transverse sonogram of the normal infraspinatus tendon (yellow shade).

Left: Supraspinatus - Transverse sonogram of the normal supraspinatus tendon (yellow shade).

Right: Supraspinatus - Longitudinal sonogram of the normal supraspinatus tendon (yellow shade).

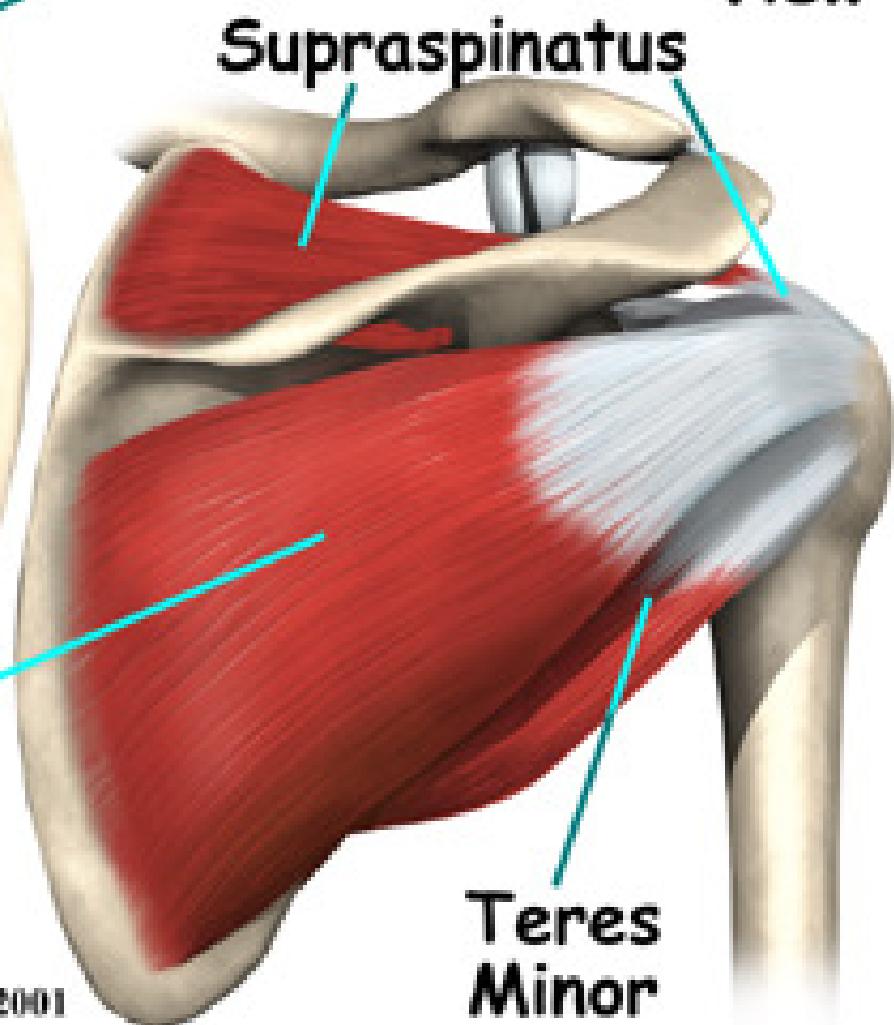

Front View

Muscles of the Rotator Cuff

Subscapularis

Back View

Infraspinatus
Supraspinatus

Teres
Minor